BADLY HURT IN SCAFFOLD FALL

George Slaybaugh, of Biglerville, in Serious Condition from Injuries Sustained when Thrown by Falling Scaffolding.

George Slaybaugh, of Biglerville, a young carpenter, sustained serious and possibly fatal injuries about noon on Friday when some scaffolding on which he was working gave way, throwing him to the ground with force, the lumber following and falling on him.

Mr. Slaybaugh, who is the son of Gates Slaybaugh, was at work on the home of Miss Hannah Slaybaugh on Fourth street, Biglerville, and was working on scaffolding about the second floor. Suddenly and without any warning the lumber pulled from the house and fell forward. Mr. Slaybaugh was thrown with force to the ground landing on hard earth and some stones. A moment later the lumber on which he was standing fell on him.

After the was freed from the pile of wreckage he was taken to his home where Dr. Hildebrand gave him attention. He had fallen heavily and it was seen at once that his spine had been injured while it was believed that internal injuries had also resulted. His condition was realized to be serious.

During the night he suffered spasms and the serious condition developed still further so that chances of his recovery are very doubtful. Mr. Slaybaugh is about 20 years of age and unmarried.

Mrs. Bessie Kirssin who has been visiting her son, Lewis Kirssin on West Middle street, has returned to her home in Baltimore.

ROBBED HOME IN DAYLIGHT

Home of George Stover Near Old Springs Dam Burglarized while Family was Absent. Large Quantity of Goods Removed.

One of the boldest robberies which has been committed in this section for some time took place Thursday morning between eight and half past ten o'clock when the home of George Stover, who lives near the Springs Dam, was broken into and the following articles taken.

Two suits of clothes, two watches, two watch chains, several rings, some gold pins, rifle, powder, shells, razor, fountain pen, two pairs of gold glasses. In addition to these some bread, pie, eggs, butter and jelly proved attractive to the intruder and he made away with them successfully.

The burglary took place while Mrs. Stover was in Gettysburg. Her husband works at the local brick plant and the house was deserted. The intruder gained entrance by prying open a window with a chisel and the rest was easy.

The discovery of the burglary was made as soon as Mrs. Stover returned from town. She at once saw that some one had been in the house during her absence and had made a complete search for valuables. After going carefully over all the property the above articles were found to be missing.

The man had such a load of stuff that it is believed he traveled a very short distance on foot afterwards unless he had an accomplice. No trace of his identity or whereabouts has been learned up to this time though the case is in the hands of County Detective Charles H. Wilson who is working on it.

LOW GRADE ON W. M.

A survey has been completed for the purpose of building a low grade line for the Western Maryland railroad to skirt the Blue mountains, thus eliminating the climb directly over them. This would result in lengthening the route about ten miles, but would give the road a lower average grade to Pittsburg, making a shorter haul than that of the Baltimore and Ohio. This extension is roughly estimated to cost about $10,000,000.

The recent traffic agreement made between the Western Maryland and the Philadelphia and Reading, gave the former an outlet to tidewater independent of the Baltimore and Ohio, and with the proposed low grade line, it will have a road practically independent of the B and O. from Pittsburg to tidewater.

FINE CORN

There is plenty of talk about dry weather and the damage it has done to corn but there has been brought to our office a ten foot stalk with two as finely developed ears as could well be grown. Several more ears, large and fully developed, were also brought in. All were from the farm of W. S. Dutters at Orrtanna: Charles Ditzler is the tenant and shows his ability as a farmer by producing such results with such adverse circumstances to face.

HEARTS ADRIFT

A pathetic figure in the successful drama, "Hearts Adrift" which will be seen at Walter Theatre Wednesday, September 14, is the devotion to each other shown by two friendless orphans, Rosie, the flower girl, and her crippled little brother, a typical New York newsboy. These two waifs are taken from real life by the author, as well as the story of their trials and privations, and the study of their advancement from their lowly position in life toward higher things without forsaking the friends of their less prosperous days, is said to have been accomplished by the playwright with rarely pleasing interest.

MERCHANTS' MEETING

FIFTY DOZEN DRINKING CUPS

To be Distributed to Gettysburg's Public School Children. Old Bucket a Thing of the Past. In County Schools too.

Fifty dozen individual drinking cups will be distributed to Gettysburg's public school children on Monday and from now on every scholar will have his own cup and the common glass or receptacle in the local schools will be a thing of the past.

There will be one cup for each of the six hundred children in Gettysburg's public schools, all of the cups will be alike and a scheme is being arranged by which they will be hung on rows of hooks. They will either be numbered or the pupils' names will be placed on them. To the pupils who wish to purchase the cups they will be sold at the rate of five cents each. Those not purchased will remain the property of the School Board.

With the passing of the common drinking cup is also noted the passing of the old germ communicating bucket out of which the water used to be dipped. Every room now has its own faucet and from this the water will be drawn. The arrangement is a decided step forward in the interest of the health of the Gettysburg school children and the Board of Education deserves to be commended for the action taken.

Many of the districts in the county are witnessing the same change for the better. There, too, the old common bucket is being done away with and is being replaced by the stone crock with faucet. Littlestown has introduced the individual cup together with a number of other Adams County school districts.

WINNERS NAMED IN AUTO RUN

Not One Car Had Perfect Score in Run from Harrisburg to this Place on Friday. Find Fault with Roads on Way here.

The sociability run of the Motor Club of Harrisburg, held on Friday from Harrisburg to Gettysburg, was captured by James A. Kline, of York, with his Kline-Kar Meteor; second place went to the Matheson entered by James E. Rice, of the Ideal Motor Car Company, and third place went to the 1911 Cadillac Thirty, entered and driven by C. C. Crispin, of the Crispin Motor Car Company. The running time of some of the cars was remarkable considering the rough roads and the first checking station was reached by three of the cars on the right scheduled time. But the second station brought down falls for all the contestants.

When the final figures were computed it was found that James Kline had received a total penalty of 1 minute and nine seconds and had captured first prize, ten dollars in gold; J. E. Rice's Matheson took second place with a penalty of exactly three minutes and took five dollars in gold; C. C. Crispin, in the 1911 Cadillac took third place with three minutes and nineteen seconds penalty, and took $2.50 in gold. All of the prizes were donated to the club by Edward C. Markley, of Steelton, one of the most enthusiastic supporters of runs of the kind.

In speaking of the run the Harrisburg Patriot says: "True, the roads between this city and Gettysburg are not the kind that would be picked out for comfortable touring. They are full of breakers and rough for long stretches, but they lead the way to the historic battlefield and show the need of immediate attention on the part of all motorists for a better highway between this city and Gettysburg."

TYPICAL MELLERDRAMMER

Fireworks a plenty, three murders, dire threats every minute, the announcement that Billy the Kid was dead once every act and the return of the aforesaid Billy just as often, were a few of the features of Friday night's offering at Walter's Theatre which drew a big house. As a general Fourth of July celebration and display of fireworks the event was a success. The blazing away of eight or ten revolvers continuously for several minutes while the house was in darkness at the end of the second act pleased the audience as did other similar scenes which took place at short intervals. It was blood and thunder and the house enjoyed it.

SHOT AFTER HORSE'S KICK

James Rodgers, a farmer living near Taneytown, was greatly distressed when going into field found his horse lying helpless with a broken leg one day this week. Further investigation revealed that the animal, which had been in the field over night with five others, was kicked with such force that one of its legs was shattered.

The animal was one of a trio of match horses which were greatly admired in that vicinity, and was valued at over $200. The animal had to be killed.

ANOTHER TIE

The number of tie games in the Sunday School base ball league continues to mount up. St. James nearly had their hopes for tying for the pennant shattered on Friday evening when the United Brethren team played a 2-2 tie. The United Brethren team had every opportunity to win when they had three men on base and no one out but by stupid base running got every man out before the better had a chance at the ball.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Eighth Grade defeated the High School Freshman Friday evening by the score of 9 to 4. This morning the Seventh Grade won from the Sixth Grade by the score of 13 to 8. The feature of the game was a home run by William Tawney.

BIG CROPS

"Business and agricultural conditions throughout the West and Northwest are notably prosperous. The crops this year scarcely will be bumper crops, in the ordinary sense of that term, but they will be very large."

This statement was made by Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, who returned from an extensive trip, consuming practically two months, through the country west of the Mississippi River.

"The corn crop will be made now within a couple of weeks," continued Secretary Wilson. "Recently the weather conditions have been very favorable, and if frost should hold off two weeks longer the crop will be a good average, although, as I said, not a bumper."

"All of the crops are fairly good better, perhaps, than we had reason to expect earlier in the year. The wheat crop is threshing out finely, and is of excellent quality. Oats are good, but the crop is not very large."

"People throughout the section which I visited are well satisfied with conditions. They are making money and are contented with general business conditions."

"We are arranging to turn into homesteads some of the land in forest reservations. I have devoted a good deal of time recently to work against the forest fires. By tremendous labor and expenditure of money, together with the aid of nature in rainfall and snowfall, we have been able to quench the Western fires and save immense areas of valuable timber."

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

CLARK TO DRIVE MULE THROUGH WASHINGTON

Missouri Man Promises Freak Stunt if Elected Speaker.

Moberly, Mo., Sept. 10. — "If I am elected speaker of the next house of representatives, I will drive a team of Missouri mules down Pennsylvania avenue."

The foregoing is the promise of Congressman Champ Clark, made to a crowd of visitors at the homecoming celebration here in the course of an address. For several minutes the speaker was unable to proceed with his speech on account of the cheering.

It was Mr. Clark's duty to welcome home Missourians who had strayed from the borders of that state. He was inclined to ask why they even went away. Also did Mr. Clark reproach his hearers for permitting Missouri to take a back seat, as he said it had done.

"Missouri has taken a back seat too long," he said. "We have done the work and the other fellows have got the glory. Missouri has never had a president, a vice president, a justice of the supreme court, or a speaker of the house. It is time we had all of these officers, and I'm going to see to it that we get one of them right away."

The members of the Cumberland club in Portland tell this story about Tom Reed.

Reed and a companion went to the club one evening, hung their coats in the cloakroom and spent the evening talking politics. When they went to get their overcoats on leaving, Reed's friend thrust his hand in the pocket for his gloves and pulled out a pocket-book that was not his and that some one had put in there by mistake.

JURY FREES LEE BROWNE

Man Accused of Bribery in Illinois Not Guilty.

ATTRACTED WIDE ATTENTION

Democratic Legislative Leader Was Charged With Bribery in Connection With the Election of Senator Lorimer.

Chicago, Sept. 10. — Lee O'Neil Browne, charged with bribery in connection with the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate, was found not guilty by a jury in the criminal court. This was Browne's second trial.

This termination of a case that has stirred the entire state and has attracted nation-wide attention was all the more sensational because of former President Roosevelt's refusal to attend the banquet of the Hamilton club in his honor if Senator Lorimer was to be present.

It was only an hour or so after the former president had issued that ultimatum and the invitation to Lorimer had been recalled that the case against Browne was placed in the hands of the jury in the court of Judge Kersten.

The judge had taken more than an hour to read his charge and instructions to the jury. Browne's counsel was much pleased with the charge and believed it was distinctly in favor of the Democratic leader in the last legislative session.

Judge Kersten told the jury to avoid considering their suspicions; to remember that the defendant was charged with bribing Representative Buckenmeyer and Link, each of whom testified to receiving money for their votes; to avoid the testimony of White where it was not corroborated, and to return a verdict of not guilty if there was a reasonable doubt.

The verdict was a surprise to the many who had watched the progress of the second trial and had feared that a repetition of the tedious deliberations of the first jury, which was out 115 hours, would close the case.

When the word that the jury had agreed was sent to Judge Kersten, Browne was not in the court room, and there was a short delay after the jury had filed in before he arrived.

27 ON CAR FERRY DROWN

Others Rescued as Doomed Vessel Sinks to Bottom.

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 10. — With her flag floating at half mast and thousands of anxious watchers waiting at the pier, the car ferry Pere Marquette No. 17 steamed into this harbor, carrying six of the twenty-seven dead victims and thirty-three survivors of the wreck of the Pere Marquette car ferry No. 18, which went to the bottom of Lake Michigan on her way from Ludington to Milwaukee.

Of the sixty people on board the wrecked vessel twenty-one have not been accounted for.

There was a moment of intense silence as the big black steamer came through the piers into the harbor. Then men and women fought to get first tidings of the fate of their relatives.

Car ferry No. 18 was valued at $400,000 and the cargo at $100,000 to $150,000. The total loss will exceed half a million dollars, fully covered by insurance.

"Car ferry No. 18 sinking—help!" was the C. Q. D. wireless message that brought the first news of the disaster to this city, about 5 a. m.

The flash was repeated continuously for nearly an hour, but was unsigned. Besides a crew of fifty men, the lost boat is said to have had two women passengers from Saginaw, Mich.

The doomed vessel left Ludington after a thorough inspection. Nothing was heard of her until the call came by wireless.

Killed by Mosquito Bite.

New York, Sept. 10. — William A. Gale, of Flatbush, was bitten on the lip by a mosquito a month ago. He died in Seney hospital of blood poisoning resulting from the tiny wound. It is not known whether Mr. Gale's blood was infected by the mosquito or by his fingernails when he scratched the swelling following the bite. Home remedies were tried, and when a physician was called in the poison had spread to the entire face.

Cost of Rubber Thread Close: Mills.

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 10. — The 400 employees of the Glendale Elastic Fabric company, of East Hampton, were notified that the plant would be shut down for an indefinite period. The high cost of rubber thread in the face of a falling market on crude rubber is given by the company as the reason for the shutdown.

"What shall I do?" he asked Reed. "If I go around the club with a pocketbook in my hand it will look strange."

"That's all right," said Reed. "Keep the pocketbook and set the coat again. We'll go back in the smoking room."

SHOT HIMSELF IN A DREAM

Man Found Asleep With a Wound in Head.

Asbury Park, N. J., Sept. 10. — The police in Asbury Park are trying to find out if A. W. von Zuker, a musician, and formerly in the wholesale piano business in New York, shot himself in a dream.

Mrs. Zuker found her husband asleep in their apartment in a small hotel and bleeding from a wound in his forehead. She asked what he had done.

"Why, there are thieves in the house," said he, "and I have just shot a burglar."

This was at 1 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Zuker called for help and then collapsed.

Von Zuker was conscious and told the physicians who were summoned that he shot himself while dreaming of burglars. The man was taken to the hospital, where the bullet was extracted. It was stated there that the dreamer would recover.

Von Zuker is said to be a member of a Hungarian family of high standing. He has recently met with reverses, it is said, and is now in reduced circumstances.

CURES PIMPLES QUICKLY

Simple Remedy That Clears Skin Quickly of All Eruptions.

For several weeks past L. M. Buehler has done the biggest business he ever had in any of his selling Hokars, the skin food that has won so many friends in Gettysburg.

It has been found to be an absolute cure not only for all minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, herpes, acne, scaly scalp, complexion blemishes, itching feet, piles, etc., but for the worst sores, ulcers, or even chronic eczema and salt rheum. There has yet to be found any form of wound or disease affecting the skin or mucous membrane that Hokars does not heal, and its action is so instantaneous that those who try it are simply delighted with it right from the start.

In spite of its unusual curative powers, the price is trifling. To convince every one of its merits, L. M. Buehler will sell a liberal-sized jar for 25c; larger size 50c. And remember that if you do not think it does what it claims, you get your money back. You certainly can afford to try it on this plan.

ROOSEVELT IN TAFT'S HOME CITY

Goes to Cincinnati and is Well Received.

MET "BOSSSES" AT RECEPTION

He Does Not Place George B. Cox and Garry Herrmann in the Same Category With Senator Lorimer, Whom He Snubbed.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 10.—President Taft's home town took Mr. Roosevelt in tow and treated him well. The colonel didn't encounter any signs of hostility and he didn't meet a reception to be described as wild. Cincinnati turned out in numbers and Mr. Roosevelt followed out the plans as they had been laid out, but that was all.

Mr. Roosevelt took occasion twice in his speech before a big audience in Music hall to say a kind word for the president. He spoke of the establishment by congress of a bureau of mines and he referred to the commission appointed by Mr. Taft to look into such matters as the capitalization and stocks of railroads. He didn't dwell on these things, but he mentioned them simply to show that he was willing to give credit to the president where he believes the administration had done well. The applause was mild here.

The colonel didn't lose an opportunity to further the cause of the new nationalism. He spoke of it in connection with the regulating of corporations and in regard to conservation. He said that he believes that the government must have the power to deal with such matters rather than the individual states.

Cox Not in Lorimer's Class.

Those who tried to stir up trouble for the colonel when they learned that Boss George B. Cox, Garry Herrmann and Rud Hynicks had been invited to attend the reception at Congressman Longworth's house, failed utterly. Mr. Roosevelt offered no objection to these men calling at the home of his son-in-law. He said that he didn't place Boss Cox in the same category with Senator Lorimer, whom he snubbed in Chicago.

The colonel expressed the opinion that there is no comparison or similarity between the two men, for Cox doesn't hold public office and isn't under the suspicion of any corruption charges, that is so far as he knows. He was quite willing to meet Cox and the others, just as he is willing to meet Barnes and the old guard in New York.

Mr. Roosevelt took up the matter of conservation because he had been discussing the problem of waterways in connection with the work being done on the Ohio. He hoped that at no distant time the national authorities will take up seriously the project for the deep waterway channel from the great lakes to the gulf.

The colonel took up the rest of his address in treating of various evils. He stated that he does think that the country is in bad condition, but that it is a pretty good country. He said that he was for the corporation strong as long as they tend to business. Again he brought out the point that a good many of the evils brought on by the corporations are due to the lax laws which allow them to act as they do. The new nationalism is what we now need.

It was a day of comparative ease for Mr. Roosevelt. He was tired after the speech in Chicago and what went with it, and Congressman Longworth tried to make things as quiet as possible. On the platform the colonel appeared to be just a bit ill in those who have seen him the past three weeks. His speech lacked his customary fire.

Mr. Roosevelt dined with Mr. and Mrs. Longworth. He dropped into an original grand opera in Music hall and after that paid a visit to Richelieu hall to say a few words to a labor union. Then he went home to bed.

Today the colonel will stop at Columbus for two hours. Then he will proceed to Pittsburgh for the last speech of the trip.

DOG COMMITS SUICIDE

Stricken With Remorse Because He Had Bitten Little Master.

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 10.—Stricken with grief because he had bitten his little master while at play, Rex, a bull dog owned by James McNeer, of this city, committed suicide.

The animal was found lifeless, with the chain that fastened him to his kennel wrapped about his neck in such a way that it could not have happened accidentally.

When Rex bit James, Jr., the animal whined and licked the injured hand. It was a serious bite. The animal's head has been sent to the Pasteur institute.

Lepor Victim Flees

Salt Lake City, Sept. 10.—John Kokas, a Greek, in an advanced stage of leprosy, who has been under quarantine here for three months, escaped from the tent in which he has been quarantined and boarded a train intending to go to New York and thence to Greece. Funds for the journey were provided by his countrymen here. His friends would not divulge the route he has taken. Kokas' left hand, it is said, is almost ready to drop off.

Within two or three years there has been a radical change in the method of handling the animals in the largest zoos of the country, particularly during the winter season. Formerly it was the aim to reproduce as nearly as possible by means of warm quarters and steam heat conditions of temperature to which the animals were accustomed in their native haunts. But monkeys from the tropics treated in this way seldom survived one winter's confinement, usually contracting and

LLOYD W. BOWERS, TAFT'S FRIEND, DIES

Man Slated For Supreme Bench Passes Away.

Boston, Sept. 10.—Solicitor General Lloyd W. Bowers, whom President Taft had picked for a supreme court justiceship, died here of complications arising from an attack of bronchitis.

Solicitor General Bowers had been ill for about a month, but it was supposed he had recovered.

Mr. Bowers was appointed as solicitor general by President Taft, March 22, 1909. The appointment was one of the first official acts of Mr. Taft as president who had long held Mr. Bowers in high regard.

The first news of Mr. Bowers' illness became generally known through a telegram sent by Mrs. Bowers to President Taft last Tuesday while he was returning to Beverly from the west. So solicitous was Mr. Taft that as soon as he reached Boston he called at the hotel and found the patient so much improved that he was able to see him. At that time President Taft expressed great satisfaction that his friend was likely to recover.

The physician who has attended Mr. Bowers here said that the patient was chatting cheerfully with his wife and son when, suddenly, he stopped talking and a moment later was dead.

The physician, Dr. Frederick Coggeshall, sped by automobile to the hotel on a telephone summons only to discover that Mr. Bowers had died in stantly of a blood clot in the heart. Dr. Coggeshall said that the original illness of Mr. Bowers, which took the form of a violent cold, was due to overwork.

JEALOUS WIFE SLAYS HUSBAND

She Shoots Him in the Head in Lawyer's Office.

SOUGHT A RECONCILIATION

Sought Revenge When She Learned He Was Arranging to Leave With Another Woman.

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 10.—Absorbed with the desire for revenge, and jealous of her husband's attentions to other women, Mrs. Annie Elizabeth Hudson, the deserted wife of Tobias Hudson, a mechanic, formerly of Cambridge, Md., and Laurel, Del., but for the past three months a resident of Salisbury, shot and almost instantly killed him in this city.

The shooting took place in the rear room of the offices of States Attorney Joseph L. Bailey, where they had met for the purpose of a reconciliation.

The story leading up to the crime dates back eleven years, according to Mrs. Hudson. Wednesday last Mrs. Hudson appeared in Salisbury and swore out a warrant before Justice Trader against Hudson for non-support and desertion. The trial took place and he was held under $250 bail for his appearance on Sept. 21. In the meantime he had not made some arrangement to support his wife.

Had Agreed to Return.

Hudson had agreed to return to his former home in Cambridge as soon as he had finished up his business arrangements in this city. This satisfied the wife, but the climax came when she heard that he was arranging to leave Salisbury with another woman. This is partially responsible for the murder.

Mrs. Hudson saw her husband driving with a woman. Then she made her arrangements to finish her troubles, as she said after the crime was committed.

Mrs. Hudson went to a hardware store and purchased a revolver, asking that they oil same and load it, as she wanted it in good working shape. Next she went to the office of the states attorney and told him to get her husband to come up, as she wanted to have a final talk with him before leaving.

When Hudson appeared he was shown to the back room, where his wife was, and they were to talk it over. They were left alone in this room. They were there for more than twenty minutes, according to the testimony before the coroner's jury, and after a while the wife began to quarrel with her husband.

Husband Would Leave.

According to the testimony, Hudson could be seen through the glass door between making gestures as if he was trying to make some matters plain, and he was heard to say: "Well, if this is all you wanted with me, I will leave." And then he turned and reached for his hat, turning his back toward his wife. She produced the revolver and fired the fatal shot, which entered Hudson's temple.

Mr. Bailey rushed to the back room. He says his first impression was that the man had killed himself, but, turning, he saw the pistol in the hand of the woman, still smoking. He almost screamed the words: "My God, woman, do you know what you have done?" and she immediately replied: "I am no worse off now than I was before."

The injured man was taken to the hospital, where he died in about one hour, never regaining consciousness. Mrs. Hudson was lodged in the county jail.

At the time of the shooting there were several women clients in M. Bailey's office. The women fainted and are under the care of physicians.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Theresa Rosengrant, a well known resident of Tunkhannock, near here, warns people not to harbor her husband, and declares she will not pay any bills he contracts, as he has left her board and taken the bed with him. The novel advertisement published reads:

"Whereas, my husband, George Rosengrant, son of the late John Rosengrant and Maria Rosengrant, formerly of Forkston, has left the house rented by me, and for which I paid the rent and has left my board and taken his bedstead along with him and sold it. This is to warn all persons not to harbor or to trust him on my account from this date, as I will pay no bills of his contracting. I shall continue to pay my rent and to keep up my table in the usual form in his absence and having one less to feed, I will be pardoned, I think, if I say in better style than formerly. There is a hard winter creeping along and he may incite your sympathies to trust him on my account, seeing that I am doing very well, thank you, but you just keep in mind that you have received this warning and govern yourself accordingly."

PROFIT IN FEEDING BEEF CALVES.

Generally speaking, any beef animal fed until it is in a well finished condition and marketed between the year age and twenty-four months is classed as baby beef, says Orange Judd Farmer. Since they must be fed several months following weaning time before they are sufficiently finished to be placed upon the market it naturally follows that very few baby beef animals are sold under ten or eleven months, while the necessity for rapid gains and early finish makes it desirable that the animals be placed upon the market as much under two years of age as possible. It is likely that most baby beef is sold between the ages of ten and eighteen months.

During the past season a considerable number of these western calves were finished for baby beef in central Indiana. Among the more successful feeders is Ed Flannigan of Franklin county. Two years ago Mr. Flannigan purchased thirty head of high grade Hereford calves in Kansas City, shipped them to his Indiana farm and fed them out for baby beef. The results were so satisfactory that the following fall he purchased sixty head at the same market for himself and something like 600 head for neighboring farmers in Franklin county. The sixty head which Mr. Flannigan retained for his own feeding were unusually high grade Herefords. They were about four or five months old when they arrived upon Mr. Flannigan's farm late in October and averaged 400 pounds in weight. In order to make the change from milk to dry feed less abrupt he placed them upon blue grass pasture for a short period, gradually introducing clean new clover hay where they could get it and learn to eat it. Upon this hay after a short time he sprinkled small quantities of cracked corn so that the calves would eat some of it with the hay and thus gradually acquire a taste for corn. Later he fed them small amounts of corn in the shock, so that they learned to eat fodder. By the time the calves were placed in the dry lot, some time in November, they had learned to eat all kinds of roughage as well as corn. Practically all the feed they received was produced upon the farm, the only feed purchased being small amounts of cottonseed meal.

The amount of corn was gradually increased until the calves were given all the grain that they would clean up every day. At the period when they were eating most the sixty head they received about seven bushels per day of shelled and cracked corn, or about six and one-half pounds per head. They were given all the roughage they would consume, and no especial record was kept of the amount consumed at different parts of the feeding period. Fresh water was available to the animals at all times, both day and night. A tank heater was used in winter to keep the temperature up.

The calves spent the winter for the most part in the open air. There was a large straw covered shed, entirely inclosed upon three sides, at one side of the corral, and the stock was free to enter this shed at any time. They seemed, however, to prefer the outside, even in the very coldest nights of winter, except on two or three occasions when a wet, heavy snow was falling.

Approximately two pounds per head per day represents the gain of the cattle throughout the feeding period. Mr. Flannigan sold these cattle in May, and the average weight at this time was about 750 pounds per head. In addition to the cash returns, which gave a very high rate of gain, both for the corn and forage consumed, a large amount of valuable manure was available for use upon the land.

The Mud Wallow For Hogs.

In his book on "Swine Breeding, Feeding and Management," William Dietrich, assistant professor of swine husbandry of the University of Illinois, says:

"The mud wallow is the natural means of destroying lice. It is a well known fact that many herds of swine are never affected with lice; also that hogs having free access to good mud wallows are not troubled in this way. Hog lice cannot live under a coating of mud, consequently when a hog has access to a mud wallow and covers himself entirely over with mud the lice will be destroyed, or at least driven off. One means of destroying lice, then, is supplying the pigs with a good mud wallow."

Amount of Salt Per Cow.

Cows require from one to eight ounces of salt per day. The more concentrates they receive the more salt they require. It should be where they can have access to it every day. According to an experiment made at the Wisconsin station, about two ounces per cow per day is the average amount required.

ANTI-FAMINE INSURANCE.

New Science of Fertilizing by Inoculation of Seeds.

The most expensive manurial substance the farmer has to purchase is the commercial fertilizer which contains nitrogen, such as nitrate of soda, guano, tankage, etc. Nitrogen, which forms four-fifths of the atmosphere, is a necessary ingredient in animal and plant food. The nitrogen in the air should supply the ground with plant food, but nitrogen is hard to catch, or "fix," as the process is technically called, and, while it is possible to secure it with the aid of static electricity and also by chemical processes, the cost is at present prohibitive. When living things die or animal products decompose, a process which is brought about through the medium of disintegrating bacteria, some of their nitrogen is converted to plant use, which explains why manure brings such a high price.

When every farmer whose soil lacks nitrogen employs the aid of bacteria there will be a wonderful increase in size and weight of crops; there will be a wonderful increase in the protein value of food for cattle, which will make for increased food value for man.

Report has it to the effect that Kansas City bankers have got together and agreed to loan no more of their funds to folks who would mortgage their town or rural property to raise the amount of money necessary to buy automobiles. This may be a bit tough on those who would find ride in just as high style as some of their neighbors, but in the end it will prove a lasting kindness. There are a stack of folks who have gone absolutely daff with this automobile mania, and some rather drastic action of this kind is needed to bring them to their senses.

The department of soils of the Wisconsin Agricultural college has undertaken the job of restoring the fertility of a worn-out sandy farm near Sparta. The tract in question has been cropped for the past forty years until it is sour and thin and unresponsive. Lime has been applied for correction of the acidity of the soil at the rate of from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acre, while, for the purpose of increasing the humus and nitrogen, clover, cowpeas, soy beans and the lupines have been grown. With the last named crop as high as two or three tons of green stuff per acre have been produced for green manure, where a short time before the soil grew nothing but pigeon grass and sand bars.

Why Cabbage Decays. A recent government publication dealing with the causes of decay of cabbage in storage states that soft rot and leaf blight are the immediate causes of this decay. The organisms which cause decay gain access to the leaf through bruises and injuries due to the careless handling and through leaves infected with black rot.

Another nitrogen fertilizer, nitrate of soda or Chile salt-peter, which has been secured from ancient deposits of guano, is fast being exhausted, not only by farm demands, but by the demand for gunpowder. We must therefore look elsewhere for nitrogen to nourish plants, for soon the supply of natural nitrogen fertilizers will fall short of the demand, says Harper's Weekly.

Now, certain plants have the property of absorbing nitrogen from the atmosphere through the medium of millions of bacteria which gather the free nitrogen from the air, and this nitrogen can be used in place of expensive commercial fertilizers. The most beneficial nitrogen gathering bacteria form excrescences called "nodules" on the roots of certain plants of the pod bearing family. These plants are called legumes and include clovers, peas, beans, alfalfa, peanuts, etc. These bacteria have one function only to perform—they form a partnership with the plant to supply it with nitrogen. They gather in great numbers on the roots of legumes, forming nodules, which are large colonies of bacteria stored with nitrogen. In exchange for sugar food which the legumes give the bacteria and on which they thrive the bacteria gather nitrogen from the air

ADVANTAGES OF GOOD ROADWAYS

Enhance Farm Land Values,
Says William Sulzer.

BENEFIT TO EVERY SECTION.

Add Untold Wealth to Both the Producer and Consumer, Says the New York Congressman--Great Value of Bad and Improved Highways Contrasted.

Congressman William Sulzer of New York, presiding officer of the recent national good roads congress, held at Niagara Falls, spoke on various aspects of good roads as vitally affecting the national prosperity. In part he said:

"For years I have been an earnest advocate of good road building. Good roads mean progress and prosperity, a benefit to the people who live in the cities, an advantage to the people who live in the country, and they will help every section of our vast domain.

"Good roads, like good streets, make every habitation along them most desirable. They enhance the value of farm lands, facilitate transportation and add untold wealth to the producers and consumers of the country; they are the milestones marking the advance of civilization; they economize time, give labor a lift and make millions in money; they save wear and tear and worry and waste; they beautify the country, bring it in touch with the city; they aid the social and the religious and the educational and the industrial progress of the people; they make better homes and happier hearth-sides; they are the avenues of trade, the highways of commerce, the mail routes of information and the agencies of speedy information; they mean the economical transportation of marketable products--the maximum burden at the minimum cost; they are the ligaments that bind the country together in thrift and industry and intelligence and patriotism; they promote social intercourse, prevent intellectual stagnation and increase the happiness and the prosperity of our producing masses; they contribute to the glory of the country, give employment to our idle workmen, distribute the necessities of life--the products of the fields and the forests and the factories--encourage energy and industry, inculcate love for our scenic wonders and make mankind better and greater and grander.

"One of the crying needs in this country, especially in the south and the west, is better roads. The establishment of good roads would in a great measure solve the question of the high price of the necessities of life and the increasing cost of living which is beginning to make life a struggle for existence. By reducing the cost of transportation it would enable the farmer to market his produce at a lower price and at a larger profit at the same time. It would bring communities closer and in touch with the centers of population, thereby facilitating the commerce of ideas as well as of material products.

"Good roads have a money value far beyond our ordinary conception; bad roads constitute our greatest drawbacks to internal development and material progress. Good roads mean prosperous farmers; bad roads mean abandoned farms, sparsely settled country districts and congested populated cities, where the poor are destined to become poorer. Good roads mean more cultivated farms and cheaper food products for the toilers in the towns; bad roads mean poor transportation, lack of communication, high prices for the necessities of life, the loss of untold millions of wealth and idle workmen seeking employment. Good roads will help those who cultivate the soil and feed the multitude, and whatever aids the producers and the farmers of our country will increase our wealth and benefit all the people. We cannot destroy our farms without final decay.

"The burdens of life fall hardest on the farmer. The least the government can do for him is to help him get decent highways. I am with the farmers in this fight for good roads. I am with the rural districts of our land in their struggle for better transportation facilities, and in congress or out of congress I shall do all in my power to hasten the consummation they desire--the ability to go and come along decent roads without exhausting the time and the effort and the utility of man and beast.

"The fathers of the republic wisely recognized the importance of this question. Washington and Jefferson advocated good roads, and projected the construction of a great highway from the capital to the Mississippi valley. The farseeing statesmen of the early days of our national existence championed and passed measures to better the means of transportation. They knew that of all human agencies the one which has done most for humanity and civilization has been the building of good roads--the abridgment of distance in the facility of communication. They realized the necessity of good roads--how important they were to the country, to its growth and development and to mankind, morally, physically, intellectually and industrially, removing national and provincial antipathies and binding together in bonds of fraternity all the branches of the great human family."

Not infrequently it is the farmer who owns the roughest and scrubbiest lands who keeps his fences in such miserable repair that his animals are an all around nuisance to all of his neighbors.

It usually takes a spell of rainy weather in spring or fall to cause teamsters to be sufficiently public spirited to take the center of the road and work down the dirt and gravel put there for grading purposes.

CHURCH AND STATE

By AGATHA L. BREWER
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Cawky Jack was the sobriquet applied to one of the most villainous demons that ever infested any of the territories belonging to the United States. His name was said to be John Biggers, but that was only surmised from the fact that on one occasion, having killed a man and been arrested, he had been called upon to give his name and had given that one.

For a long while Cawky Jack was accustomed to put people out of his way by means of small round leaden balls. It was a very inexpensive way of doing it, and at the time there was no one in a position to make open objection. But the original venomous nest occupied by Jack grew to be a hamlet, then a town with a church.

The deacons of the church finally came to consider that the place had outgrown Cawky Jack. He must either be reformed or got rid of. At a meeting of the deacons it was decided to send a committee to the desperado to announce to him that he must either come within the fold of the church or stop killing people or "git out." Jack sent back word that he was not prepared to become a Christian and he didn't propose to leave a place in which he had lived so long and "whose boneyard he had done so much to fill."

At a meeting of the deacons to hear the report of the committee Deacon Riggs from Tennessee, who before his conversion had done the next most to Jack in filling the said boneyard, got up and spoke as follows:

"Brethren, I reckon we've all air reckoned to the fact that the sinner must be removed, provided it kin be done accordin' to Scripture. Now, I hold that the good book doesn't no-war forbid us to strike down the enemies o' the Lord. It does say that he who smites with the sword shall perish by the sword, or words to that effect. But whar, I'd like to know, does it say anything about the revolver? I move that after pray'r we resolve ourselves into a committee to go forth, and the first one of us that meets Cawky Jack opens fire."

The speaker sat down, and Brother Hargan arose.

"I think," said Hargan, "that I kin name a better way than that. I recymend that we offer a twenty dollar bill to any man as 'll shoot Cawky Jack."

Since nobody wished to take a personal part in the job, the motion found favor with the brethren. Hargan was empowered to make the offer, and the meeting adjourned.

The next morning a notice appeared on the church door stating that anybody who would shoot Cawky Jack would receive $20 from the church funds. The object of this notice, sauntering by the church, saw it and read it. He went on very thoughtful. The next day he expressed a desire to meet the deacons, and they agreed to meet him that evening in a wing of the church used for a Sunday school room. When they were assembled Jack arose and said:

"I appreciate the effort o' you gents in tryin' to make this yere a respectable community. But I allus hear thur's no gov'ment so low down as the gov'ment o' the riches. The church is fer spiritual work; the law is fer gov'ment. Now, if you gents will organize a court in this yere town as 'll make a law agin carryin' weepens I'll be the first to drop mine."

Since this was coming in another way at what the committee wanted they agreed to the proposition, called a public meeting, and a court was duly organized. As soon as this was effected Cawky Jack swore out a warrant against the deacons, charging them with conspiracy with intent to kill him. The people were somewhat taken aback at this proceeding on the part of the legally reformed Cawky Jack, but the newly elected officers saw no way to proceed except in accordance with the statutes. The deacons were all arrested, but immediately bailed.

Their counsel, a real lawyer imported for the purpose of defending them, informed them that a long term of imprisonment was the penalty fixed for their crime and the proof was undisputable. They unanimously decided to return to Deacon Riggs' plan.

The Tennesseean was himself the first man to meet Cawky Jack after the decision.

"Howdy, deacon?" said Jack.

"Howdy, Jack?" replied the deacon.

"How is the law workin'?"

"First rate. It's church and state together. The law says 'Carry no weepens.' The church says 'Smite him hip and thigh.'"

There was a report and Jack fell dead.

This removed the prosecutor of the deacons, and a noble sequel was entered.

The little wooden church on whose door was tacked the offer for the elimination of Cawky Jack is now an eminently respectable stone edifice, and its worshippers are refined people. Its founders seemed to realize that their moral incidents attending their early efforts in its behalf were crude, for in the "boneyard," now the cemetery connected with it, is a marble headstone on which is inscribed:

Cawky Jack.
A victim in the cause of religion.

Last spring there were two or three pear trees in the writer's orchard which looked decidedly sick. A nurseryman who saw them thought the trouble might be blight. A fruit inspector at first diagnosed the case as crown gall. But a digging up of one of the trees showed a perfectly clean and healthy condition of the root wood and bark, but that the lower roots were virtually standing in a foot and a half of the surface at that point. None of the tree fruits flourishes with wet feet.

DRONES OF THE FARM.

Stallions and Bulls Should Earn Their Keep by Useful Labor.

A perplexing question which always confronts the farmer and breeder is, How shall the bulls and stallions be handled to prevent them from becoming a nuisance? It is a well known fact that a full grown bull is a white elephant upon the farm regardless of either breeding or value; that his care and control are the bane of the farmer's life; that he is usually inclosed in a strong pen or hitched with a chain to a post where he gets but little exercise, with the result that the poor brute becomes nervous, vicious and dangerous. He suffers in loss of vitality, deteriorates in propinquity, becomes self burdened with useless fat and is a drone in every sense of the word. What is true of the bulls is equally true regarding stallions, except that there are fewer of them.

"At the farm conducted under my supervision," writes John McLennan in Rural New Yorker, "operated in connection with the New York State School of Agriculture at Alfred, N. Y., are kept four bulls and two stallions. The bulls are pure bred, representing the principal dairy types, and the stallions are an imported Percheron and a registered trotter. In temperament they are probably not materially different from other bulls and stallions of like breeds, yet under our treatment they are all absolutely gentle, reliable and very serviceable. They work every working day and work hard. The big Percheron is one of the best work horses on the farm.

"It may be suggested that full grown bulls and stallions which were never trained to work would be a dangerous and difficult proposition to undertake. I would suggest in answer to that that the Jersey bull shown in the illustration was purchased this season as a wild, vicious and unsafe animal and that he and his Guernsey mate were entirely trained by a seventeen year old lad who drives them. I may say that all of these animals will be shown at the coming state fair at Syracuse, the stallion in his class among the draft horses and the bulls in their proper classes among the several dairy breeds, but of much more importance as it seems to me they will be shown every day, hitched singly and in combination, to give a practical illustration of how the state secures much valuable labor on the state farm at Alfred from drones."

While the western poultryman gets 50 per cent more for his eggs and poultry, he has to pay just about the same per cent more for the ration he feeds his hens, and while he gets more eggs in winter, he has to fight lice and mites harder in summer. So all in all it is about a standoff.

The chief advantage of fall plowing aside from the fact that the work is done in good season, is due to the exposure of the soil to air and moisture and the disintegrating effect of frost. The beneficence of the service rendered is immense, yet often disregarded and too seldom taken advantage of.

We have made the observation before, but it is nevertheless worth repeating, that on every farm where there are a hayfork and a manure spreader at the barn there should be lineoleum on the floor in the kitchen and a drainage system for the kitchen sink which will do away with the necessity of emptying pails.

FEEDING THE COLT.

Good Pasture, With Oats and Bran, Keeps Him Thrifty.

The main thing in feeding the colt is to supply the oats. It is true that somewhat faster gains, with less oats required for each pound of growth, generally result from feeding crushed oats to foals, but the difference is not great enough to worry about.

If it is sheaf oats that are to be chopped, a breeder would advise against feeding much of that to the foal anyway. It needs nutritious feed. For roughage it is better to allow it a free run at pasture at this season. If this is impossible feed nutritious hay, such as clover or alfalfa or even timothy, and give the coarse sheaf oats to older horses.

If one must cut sheaf oats in some way he can rig up an effective though crude and slow working machine with a corn knife. Drill a hole in the tip end of the blade and bolt it pivot fashion so that the blade may be swung singly across the edge of a shallow trough made for the purpose.

The bottom of this should be of hard wood or else have a metal cutting plate. The knife edge should swing as close to this as possible without allowing the edge to catch and be dulled. This kind of chopper works like a photograph trimmer. The operator swings the knife down with one hand and pushes the roughage to be cut forward against it with the other, advancing it between each stroke sufficiently to cut off the desired length when the knife comes down.

Rather than keep feed before the colt all the time it is better to feed at regular intervals twice a day, or still better, three times if that is convenient, just what the youngster will clean up promptly. This plan of feeding keeps the digestive system in more healthy condition and induces the colt to eat regularly.

If the colt is getting plenty of exercise it may be fed all it desires in this way of oats, or, better, oats with a little bran unless some digestive disturbance becomes evident. Of course the colt should have either a free choice of good pasture or else good clean hay.

The Shropshire sheep is moderate in size, hardy and is probably more raised for general purposes than any other single variety. Like Poland-China or Duro-Jersey hogs, they are first class debt payers and mortgage lifters, and every farm should have a few of them.

The Only Way

Many Gettysburg Citizens Have Discovered It.

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world-wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Gettysburg citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

Mrs. Frank Tawney, 28 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, Pa. says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my family with excellent results. I publicly endorsed them two years ago and hold just as high an opinion of them at this time. A member of my family was afflicted with kidney trouble for years and probably inherited it. This person suffered a great deal from pains in his back and sides and was unable to control the kidney secretions. A cold always aggravated the complaint. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at the People's Drug Store and their use effected a complete cure."

A COUNT'S PRANK.

Delighted the Revelers, but Worried the Police of Stockholm.

All Europe is laughing at the latest escapade of Count Gasta Hamilton, known as "Le comte des chats--the cat count," and a member of the English dual house of Hamilton. The story of his latest prank is told in European newspapers.

Count Gasta and some of his cronies had honored Rosenbad, a popular resort in Stockholm, with their patronage, and as a result some of the furniture had been broken. In particular, the covering of a fine sofa had been ripped and damaged. The manager of the resort remonstrated with the count and suggested the advisability of the latter paying for the damage. This the count agreed to do and virtually purchased the piece of furniture, receiving a receipt from the manager.

In a short time a singular procession was seen by night revelers in the park wending its way from the main restaurant to the public road. Four sturdy messengers carried a sofa, on which reclined the count and his companions provided with napkins tied to their canes. Amid cheers the procession left the grounds. It had not proceeded far before a night policeman halted the revelers, but worried the Police of Stockholm.

In less than an hour the captain was astonished to have the sofa and its retinue of attendants brought before him by another officer. The party was released a second time. The incident was repeated three times, and the captain was becoming a fit subject for the madhouse when he had a brilliant idea. Four officers were ordered to march with the count, the sofa and the party to escort them home.

Slowly the procession moved toward the shore. When a landing place was reached the count and his friends made a jump for the bridge, where a motor launch was in waiting. Amid the cheers of the crowd the launch sped away, leaving the officers to carry the sofa wearily back to the police station.

ANOTHER WARNING.

That the greatest caution should be used in the purchase of land in sections of the country with which one may not be acquainted was brought to the writer's attention most forcibly the other day in the case of an elderly woman who has seen a deal of hard work and has not been able to lay by a large store against the rainy day, who has invested a snug sum of money in an irrigated land proposition 2,500 miles from where she lives, the enterprise being backed by men whose headquarters are still farther removed from the land which they are selling to confiding investors. The writer does not know enough of the proposition in question to feel that he is justified in labeling it a skin or shell game proposition, but the fact that the tract is eighty miles from a railroad and that the specifications as to the water rights are on the hazy order leads to the conclusion that the purchase of the land is not a wise one. It is a pretty safe rule to follow to purchase no land anywhere--not even in the most favored sections of the country--without a careful and painstaking first hand investigation touching the character and fertility of the soil, climate, water right, neighbors, etc., or a verdict on these points from a friend who has made such investigation and in whose integrity and veracity one can place full confidence. If a person does not have the money to defray the expense of such inspection, there is no question that he is entirely too poor to run the risk of losing his all in a dubious land investment. Plenty of good land is being offered for sale by responsible men who live and will continue to live in the locality where their holdings are located, but now understanding this there are tens of thousands of acres of land here and there that are advertised as "great bargains--take 'em quick," which are not worth a continental, never were and never will be. In view of everything, caution and good horse sense should be given a little more healthy exercise. This may not sate that morbid desire to get something for nothing or to get rich quick, but it is reasonably sure it will save a world of futile and briny regrets in the long run.
